Just a thought...

Prayer – Just for Today

Direct my thoughts and bless them

Direct my work and bless it.

Direct the things I say and give them blessing too.

Direct and bless everything I think and speak and do.

So that from this one day – Just this one day.

I have the gift of grace

That comes from your presence.

Gardening the Soul

Being people of courage and hope does not mean not feeling afraid; rather, courage is the willingness to stay open to our fear and our rawness without running away. None of us is courageous all the time. With fear we embark on most journeys. Courage appears when we are willing to sit on the edge of our pain and look at it face to face. Sr. Stan Kennedy

He that has light within his own clear breast May sit in the centre, and enjoy bright day: But he that hides a dark soul Himself his own dungeon.

John Milton

Quote for the Week

Rumour is a pipe

Blown by surmises, jealousies, conjectures,

And of so easy and so plain a stop

That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,

The still-discordant wavering multitude,

Can play upon it. William Shakespeare.

The Quotable Spirit – Immortality

It is not possible that we should remember that we existed before our body, for our body can bear no trace of such existence, neither can eternity be defined in terms of time or have any relation to time. But notwithstanding, we feel and we know that we are eternal.

It's good to laugh.....

Things my Mother taught me...

My mother taught me humour.. 'When that lawnmower cuts off your toes, don't come running to me.

My mother taught me adulthood... 'If you don't eat your vegetables, you'll never grow up.'

My mother taught me about genetics... 'You are just like your father.'

My mother taught me about my roots... 'Do you think you were born in a field.'
My mother taught me wisdom of age... 'When you get to my age you will understand.'
My mother taught me anticipation... 'Just wait till your father gets home.'
My mother taught me justice... 'One day you will have kids, and I hope they will turn out just like YOU.. then you'll see what it's like.

Questions People Ask!

Q. I prefer to bypass the saints and go straight to God in my prayers. Am I missing anything?

A. We venerate the saints for many reasons. We see the greatness of God's grace manifested in their holy lives. They show us what human nature is capable of with the help of God's grace. When on earth they helped people and they still continue to add their prayers to ours. They do not take us away from God but accompany us on our pilgrimage to God. Many people feel more inspired and stronger in their company.

Saints of the week...

Mon 27 – St. Angela Merici, 1474 – 1440 – founder of the Ursulines, devoted herself to Christian education based on love.

Tues 28 – St. Thomas Aquinas – was born in Italy in 1224 and died in 1274. Thomas taught that Christian revelation and human knowledge are aspects of a single truth and cannot be in conflict with one another.

Thurs 30 – St Aidan- renowned for his generosity and kindness.

Bl. Margaret Ball – was imprisoned for teaching Catholicism.

Bl. Francis Taylor – for his Catholic faith he was imprisoned and died there.

Fri – 31 – St. John Bosco, St John Bosco – founded the Salesians to educate boys for life.

Sat 1 Feb – St. Brigid – renowned for her hospitality and care of the sick.

...thought for the week

Everyone's eyes ought to be windows, but in too many cases they are shutters instead.

Quip for the Week

A lot of men, including some politicians, are too busy trying to get ahead to do a good job.

Third Sunday in Ordinary Time

The Gospel's of Matthew

Our Sunday cycle of Scripture readings this year is based on the Gospel of Matthew. In today's selection, Matthew describes the beginning of Jesus' public ministry, and quotes a passage from Isaiah, which the liturgy uses for our first reading. The quote sounds familiar, since we heard it in the Christmas Liturgy. "The people who sit in darkness have seen a great light."

Midnight Mass, when the beauty of the birth of the infant Jesus is before us, is a contrast to today's scene. In the light of day, Jesus walks by the Sea of Galilee, and our thoughts turn into the adult mission of the Messiah. That mission takes place in the midst of the Jewish people, labouring under Roman rule. Along the dusty roads, and in towns and synagogues, in the face of human suffering and sin, and eventually from Calvary's hill, Matthew is proclaiming that the light of Christ will conquer death.

And, lest we think we can remain spectators, as perhaps we were on Christmas before the lovely nativity scene in our church, the liturgy invites us to shoulder the role of disciple, as Jesus calls his first followers. These simple Galilean fishermen left everything in response to the call. Can we hesitate, think it over, and give Jesus an answer next week or next month? Not if we take to heart the urgent message of today's Gospel: "The kingdom of heaven is at hand."
